

Where Our Valves Are Used

Did You Know...

While we can't possibly keep track of where each and every Milwaukee Valve is installed, occasionally an inquiry/order pops up and we sit back and say, "That's cool!"

The end user, a major hotel chain in one of the largest cities in the world, is replacing every check valve in their trademark property. Milwaukee Valve check valves will be installed on the hydronic lines to and from the fan coil units (FCUs). For those unfamiliar with FCUs, it's a fancy term for the Heating/AC units in the rooms. The hotel features more than 1,900 guest rooms, 47 suites and more than 150,000 sq. ft. of meeting space.

Some would argue that making and selling valves may not be the most glamorous career path, but taking part in projects like this is something to take pride in.
